VOLUME XXXIII NO. 20

SEYMOUR, INDIANA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1914.

PRICE TWO CENTS

COUNCIL VOTED TO MAKE $12,000 LOAN

Finance Committee Reported That Amount Will be Needed Until Taxes Are Received.

NO MORE ASHES ON STREETS

Contractors Instructed to Repair Chestnut Street at Mouth of Alley in Block "K."

An ordinance to make a temporary loan of $12,000 was passed by the city council at the regular session Thursday night. The ordinance was introduced by Ahlbrand, chairman of the finance committee, and was not unexpected. The treasury was about exhausted when the council went into office and as no money will be received until June it was necessary to negotiate a loan so that the bills could be paid.

All the members were present and Mayor Ross presided at the meeting. Rockstroh, chairman of the board of works, moved that a committee be appointed to confer with the merchants relative to repairs on the sprinkling wagon, and it was carried. The merchants, it is understood, are to pay for the upkeep of the wagon. Upon motion of Andrews, the board of works will use the concrete on the lots adjoining the city building on the street as they deem necessary. The concrete was hauled from the streets that were improved during the summer. Much of it has been broken up and is ready to place on the streets needing repair.

Upon motion of Hodapp, the street commissioner was instructed to discontinue the hauling of ashes on the streets. For several years the ashes have been used in repairing streets and alleys. It will probably be necessary to rent a dumping ground but this question will be discussed later.

Andrews moved that the city clerk notify the contractors to repair Chestnut street at the mouth of the alley in Block "K." The street was torn up several weeks ago when the new sewer was constructed. The council voted upon motion of Andrews to refer the assessment roll for the sewer to the board of public works. This assessment roll was before the former council but was referred to the engineer with instructions that all the property in the block be assessed. The first assessment roll only included such property that would be directly benefited by the sewer.

The Iowa Advertising Company, of New Philadelphia, O., requested the privilege of placing receptacles on the corners for waste paper. The communication was referred to the committee of public health.

The bonds of the officials were approved, having been verified by the city attorney and finance committee.

The following claims were allowed: James Cadem, asst. city eng., $ 7.50 Cordes Hdw. Co., supplies, .70 Reider's Blacksmith Shop, horseshoeing, 2.90 W. H. Reynolds, supplies, .25 Ruth Cole, typewriting, 1.00 Mrs. Constance, janitress, 4.50 Mutual Telephone Co., .60 Public Service Co., lights, 4.08

FILES CHARGE OF ASSAULT AND BATTERY WITH INTENT

Fred Kahrs, From Near Fleming, Makes Affidavit Against Miss Grace Marshall.

Miss Grace Marshall was arrested Thursday night at her home near Fleming, by Deputy Constable D. L. Prall after an affidavit charging assault and battery with intent to kill Fred Kahrs had been filed against her. The affidavit was filed in Justice of Peace John Congdon's court by Mr. Kahrs. Miss Marshall was brought here by the deputy constable and is in his charge.

It has not been definitely decided whether or not a preliminary hearing will be held in the case. It is said that Miss Marshall does not deny the shooting and if it were found that she was guilty the justice under the law could do nothing else but transfer the case to the circuit court. A justice of peace has no jurisdiction in such cases except to hold the preliminary hearing.

A number of witnesses was told to appear in Justice Congdon's court tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock but it is believed that they will not be called upon to testify. It is said that Cecil Burge was with Mr. Kahrs at the time of the shooting and was the only witness except the principals.

It is reported that the shooting was the result of some trouble that has occurred between Kahrs and Miss Marshall regarding the latter's chickens. However, Kahrs declares he thought the difficulty had been settled and did not expect trouble when Miss Marshall approached him Thursday afternoon. His wound in the right shoulder is quite painful but it is not believed it will cause him serious trouble. Two shots were fired, it is reported, but only one bullet took effect.

Another Modern Improvement.

Deputy Prosecutor Wesner says that hereafter no affidavits will be written in the office of the chief of police and that persons who desire to take such action will be required to come to his office or to the office of the mayor on the second floor of the city building. The deputy prosecutor reached this conclusion when it was announced that no trials will be heard in the office of the chief of police but will be called in the court room or in the mayor's office.

Band Organized.

Charles Steinwedel, proprietor of the Steinwedel Music Store, went to Dudleytown Thursday night where he organized a band of twelve instruments. The musicians will practice regularly and expect to furnish music for picnics and other occasions in that vicinity.

BANQUET FOLLOWS THE INSPECTION

Sidney W. Douglass, District Inspector, Praises Local Knights Templar Commandery.

SEES IMPROVEMENT IN WORK

Visitors From Indianapolis, Columbus and Bedford Attended Meeting Last Night.

One of the best meetings ever held by the local Commandery of Knights Templar was enjoyed Thursday night, the occasion being the annual inspection by Sidney W. Douglass, inspector of this district. About fifteen visitors from the Indianapolis, Columbus and Bedford commanderies were present.

After the initiation which was held especially for the inspecting officer a turkey banquet was served. The tables were arranged in the shape of a cross, the emblem of this degree of Masonry. Sim Watkins, commander of the Seymour Commandery, acted as toast master and called on a number of visiting officers for talks.

Inspector Douglass paid a high compliment to the work of the local Commandery and said that a decided improvement was seen over two years ago when he made the first inspection after the Commandery was installed. Visiting Templars also commended the work of the Seymour Commandery.

Although the Commandery was organized here about two years ago the lodge is in a healthy condition and has a membership of about fifty. During the past few months a large number of candidates have been given the work and the degrees will be conferred on others who have filed their applications. The membership of the Commandery includes Templars from Scottsburg, Brownstown, Medora and other towns in Jackson and Scott counties. The prospects for the coming year are highly encouraging and the members are enthusiastic over the outlook.

The annual inspection of the Columbus Commandery will be held tonight and a number of the local Templars will visit that lodge.

BROCK ENTERED PLEA OF NOT GUILTY IN CIRCUIT COURT

Arrested Here Wednesday on Charge of Uttering Forged Check—Trial Set For Monday.

Charles H. Brock, who was arrested here Wednesday on a charge of uttering a forged check, was arraigned in circuit court this afternoon and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set for Monday. He waived a preliminary hearing in the Mayor's court and upon advice of his attorney took the case to the circuit court.

When Brock was arrested he is alleged to have been trying to erase a name on a check drawn on the Freetown State Bank. The check was made payable to C. L. Smith and was signed by C. L. Jones. A stranger who gave his name as Fred Mooner, of Mexico, Oklahoma, is said to have written the names. Brock, it is reported, cannot write. Mooner and his wife had been given a ticket to Washington by Township Trustee Charles Steinwedel and were waiting for the train when he is alleged to have written the check. He was held here until Thursday at the expense of the city but as the case was transferred to the circuit court he was allowed to go to Washington.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOLS WILL HOLD SPELLING CONTESTS

Decision is Reached at Meeting of the County Board of Education Thursday.

The regular meeting of the county board of education was held at the office of Superintendent J. E. Payne, at Brownstown, Thursday. The board is composed of all the township trustees and the county superintendent is chairman.

It was decided to hold a township spelling contest again this year. The "bees" will be held in the various district schools of the county and the winners will go to the township contests. These will be held at the regular township institutes. The contest will not be carried further than the townships this year. Prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Exhibitions of the work of the pupils of the various district schools will be shown this year. The displays proved to be very interesting last year and were instrumental in arousing the schools to better work in order that they might make a good showing at the exhibits. The exhibit of the schools in Jackson, Washington and Redding townships will be held at the Consolidated school in the near future.

The board also discussed the necessity of the teachers attending the meeting of the state teachers' association next year and it was urged that all be present at the session. The meeting will be held in November next year and the teachers will be paid their regular salaries if they are present.

TAGGART MACHINE CONTROLS BANQUET

In Spite of Fact, However, Names of Wilson and Bryan Were Loudly Cheered.

ADMINISTRATION IS PRAISED

Taggart Has Place of Honor and Is First Speaker—Governor Ralston is Toastmaster.

Indianapolis, January 9—At the Democratic banquet and love feast at the German House at Indianapolis last night it was very noticeable that the machine Democrats were loud in their praise of Wilson and Bryan.

Machine Democrats, including Governor Samuel M. Ralston, toastmaster, and Thomas Taggart, who took a prominent part in the meeting, made haste to declare their allegiance to Wilson policies, and Mayor Joseph E. Bell also fell in line. The recent organization of the Wilson and Bryan League of Indiana to throw off the machine rule of Indiana Democracy was not referred to by any of the speakers.

There were several hundred Democrats at the love feast, and large numbers of members of the Wilson and Bryan League were in the audience. They entered into the spirit of the occasion, although the machine was in control of the affair, and joined in the applause when the speakers declared their loyalty to the policies of the Wilson administration.

Thomas Taggart had the place of honor among the speakers. Governor Ralston called on him first in the absence of Congressman Carter Glass, of Virginia, who was to have been the principal speaker. Mr. Taggart not only praised the work of President Wilson, but declared for a uniform primary law, a measure which had already been advocated by the Wilson and Bryan League. He took occasion to make a rather clever defense of his connection with machine politics.

SECOND NUMBER OF LECTURE COURSE SATURDAY EVENING

Mozart Company Will Give Excellent Musical Program at First Baptist Church.

The Mozart Musical Company will give the second number of the Entertainment and Lecture Course at the First Baptist Church at 8:15 o'clock Saturday night. This is one of the strongest and highest paid numbers of the entire course and will be especially interesting to lovers of good music. Quite a number of local people have had the opportunity to hear this splendid company before and have only words of highest praise for their work.

The Mozart Company consists of four members, Mrs. Audrey Spangler Mortland, pianist and reader, Isobel Jungerman, violinist, Alexander J. Spiegel, 'cellist, and William T. Shaffer, vocal soloist. The company has been on the lyceum platform for the past four years and the press notices concerning their programs are very flattering.

The program will not begin until 8:15 o'clock in order that a larger number of persons might attend. The single admission tickets will be sold for thirty-five cents. Those who desire to attend the other numbers of the course may purchase a season ticket for $1 at the door. This will net a saving as the single admissions for the other numbers will be thirty-five cents each.

PROSECUTOR'S OFFICE TO AID IN LAW ENFORCEMENT

Will Co-operate With City Administration in General "Clean up" Campaign.

The prosecutor's office is ready and willing to co-operate with the city administration in a law and order campaign, according to Deputy Prosecutor F. W. Wesner who declares that he will be supported by Prosecuting Attorney John H. Underwood. The position of the prosecutor in such a campaign is important as either he or his deputy are required to file many of the affidavits and to aid in other ways in enforcing the law. With the prosecutor's office working in harmony with the city administration there appears to be little chance for a law violator continuing his operations when the campaign is well started.

The notice issued Thursday by Mayor Ross to tobacco dealers that the law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes and tobacco to minors would be rigidly enforced is taken to be the first step in the general reform campaign. Other orders are expected to follow shortly affecting other businesses. It is understood that when an order is issued by the Mayor to Chief of Police McCord it will be followed up and violators will be required to respect it. The "pressure" will be applied gradually, it is reported, but there will be no backward steps after the notices are made public.

RIVALRY A BIT TOO SPIRITED

Prince William Likely to Decline Throne of Albania.

OTHERS ARE KEEN FOR THE JOB

Not Only That, but They Are Turks With a Reputation For Doing Things in a Warlike Way, and a Peaceful Young European Prince With a Desire For Long Life Might Very Properly Hesitate.

Vienna, Jan. 9.—It is reported here that the Prince of Wied hesitates to accept the throne of Albania, and it is believed in well informed circles that he will finally refuse it.

Prince William of Wied, who was selected by the powers for the throne of Albania, is a brother of the reigning prince of Wied and is thirty-eight years old. He is married to Princess Sophia of Schoenburg-Waldenburg and has a baby daughter.

There are three rival claimants to the throne in the field—Essad Pasha, Ismael Kemal Bey and Izzet Pasha. A state bordering on open hostilities exists.

A dispatch from Brindisi says it is reported that Izzet Pasha, former Turkish minister of war, has arrived there on his way to head an expedition into Albania. The police of Brindisi are keeping close watch on a number of Albanians, who have held several meetings at various hotels, where they are registered as officers.

It is declared by Albanians that the Musselmans in northern Albania, under the leadership of Essad Pasha, favor the claims of Izzet Pasha to the throne, while the southern Albanians support Ismael Kemal Bey.

The original plan of Izzet Pasha was said to be to make Brindisi his base of operations for a raid into Albania. He himself was to land secretly at Avlona, the Albanian seaport on the Adriatic, and get into communication with his supporters in the interior, who were to rise and proclaim him prince of Albania under the protectorate of the sultan of Turkey.

The Italian authorities heard of these plans and interfered, thus causing a change of scheme and bringing about a diminution of the number of raiders, who were compelled to proceed directly from Constantinople to Avlona instead of from the Italian coast. When they arrived at Avlona they were arrested and disarmed.

STOCKHOLDERS TAKE THE CASE TO COURT

Big Stock Distribution Plan May Be Checked.

New York, Jan. 9.—In the supreme court suit has been filed by holders of 1950 shares of preferred stock of the Union Pacific to enjoin the Union's proposed distribution of its Baltimore and Ohio stock to its common stock holders. The suit was filed immediately after the board of directors of the Union Pacific had ratified the executive committee recommendation for the stock distribution.

Court action against the proposed distribution of Union Pacific's $82,067,800 Baltimore and Ohio stock to holders of the common, excluding the preferred, was threatened as soon as the plan was announced. It has been expected by the directors.

Action is brought for a permanent injunction as well as a temporary injunction pending the hearing. It is based on the allegation that the Baltimore and Ohio stock of the Union Pacific represents capital investment of the company and fixed assets, not earnings. As such, it is claimed, the preferred stockholders are entitled to share in the distribution according to their right as provided in their agreement with the company to share equally with the common in any distribution of assets.

Other holders of preferred are invited to join the suit, though it is understood that the biggest holders of preferred stock will not take action against the proposed distribution to the common stockholders. Jacob S. Schiff and Mrs. E. H. Harriman are the largest holders of the preferred.

A Mysterious Disappearance.

Greenfield, Ind., Jan. 9.—Howard Branham, aged fifty-two, one of the first letter carriers appointed when free delivery was established in this city twenty years ago, is missing. He has been absent for more than a week. Branham, who is an officer of the local tribe of Red Men, collected the quarterly dues recently.

MOVING MARINES TO EAST COAST

Uncle Sam Getting Ready for Emergencies.

ACTED UPON SHORT NOTICE

The Marine Force Now on the Battleships at Vera Cruz Will Be Doubled by Arrival of Force From Panama, in Addition to Which the Entire Atlantic Fleet Soon Will Be in Adjacent Waters.

Washington, Jan. 9.—A more aggressive policy on the part of the Wilson administration in dealing with the Mexican situation is indicated in an order issued by the secretary of the navy, who has ordered that 400 marines stationed on the Isthmus of Panama be transferred to the east coast of Mexico.

The announcement of this doubling of the force of marines strengthened the growing impression that the administration is preparing for the adoption of a practical policy to take the place of the present attitude of waiting for President Huerta to yield to the desire of President Wilson for his elimination from the scene. Complying with suggestions made by President Wilson, little has been heard in congress for months about Mexico. Lately members of congress have expressed impatience over the administration's Mexican policy.

That the ordering of the marines to the east coast of Mexico was decided upon short notice was obvious from the fact that the battleship Minnesota, which left for Mexico early in the week is to be deflected from her present course by wireless and will proceed instead to Colon, Panama. There she will take on board the 400 marines and convey them to Vera Cruz, where they will be distributed among the battleships at that point and at Tampico. The total force of the marines on the east coast of Mexico available for landing parties at short notice will be about 850 men, there being about 450 already present on the ships. On Saturday of this week, however, all battleships now in commission and not either in dock or already in Mexico, will sail for Porto Rico for the annual winter war games and exercises. The fleet will co-operate with a marine force now enroute there, which consists of about 2,000 men, or practically all those available for such duty on the Atlantic coast.

The impression has been growing here that John Lind made a pessimistic report on conditions in Mexico on the occasion of his recent conference at sea with President Wilson. Private advices received from Vera Cruz and elsewhere in Mexico from time to time have tended to indicate that Lind was beginning to hold views on Mexico and the duty of the United States more like those of Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, than those of the president and Secretary Bryan.

PREPARING FOR AN ATTACK

Villa's Forces Again Gathering Before Beleagured City.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 9.—Pancho Villa and his rebel reinforcements, with ample ammunition, have passed through Lamula Pass. The rebel general is preparing to renew the attack on Ojinaga, but just when the attack will start is uncertain.

The federalists sent out skirmishers in the direction of the rebel camp upon receiving a report that the rebels were advancing. The rebels have sent nearly a hundred wounded to this side of the river. This forced the rebel officers to appeal for more help. Colonel Clully, a federal commander, who died in the hospital here, declared that his own men shot him on the battlefield.

That the rebels received a severe setback when they withdrew on Monday is an established fact. The federalists from their intrenched position did great damage to the rebel ranks, besides capturing some of the rebel artillery. The rebels wasted much of their ammunition and the capture by the federalists of two auto loads of munitions of war was really what forced the rebel artillery to quit the siege of Ojinaga until it could get more supplies.

General Mancilla of the federal forces, who because of illness, came to this side and surrendered to United States troops, came without arms and will return to Ojinaga as soon as he convalesces. He may be permitted to go to El Paso for a time. Eight other federal generals are left in Ojinaga. The rebels have not yet commenced any aeroplane scouting, although they declare they have smuggled one over the river. They say it will be used to drop bombs on Ojinaga when the battle reopens, but their work of this character at Guayamas was a failure.

PLACES BURDEN ON PROPRIETOR

Supreme Court Rules In Interesting Case.

TRUE WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Must Be Used in Indiana Merchandising and It Also Is Held the Burden Is on the Proprietor of the Store to Know That No Deceptive Devices Are in Use in His Place of Business or Stand to Suffer the Penalty.

Indianapolis, Jan. 9.—The supreme court has reversed the Miami circuit court for instructing the jury to acquit Hugh McCaffrey of the charge of selling short measure of potatoes. The evidence was sufficient to show McCaffrey was owner of McCaffrey & Co. department store at Peru, and that Harvey G. Boyd bought potatoes in the store, ordering a peck and paying for a peck, although he only received eleven pounds of potatoes.

The court says "the proprietor of a store must know that no false weights or measures are being used in his business, and failing to do so must suffer penalty." The court says that there being sufficient evidence from which the jury might have inferred that the defendant was owner of the store the question should have been left to the jury.

The case was prosecuted and appealed as a test of the new law requiring the sale of potatoes by weight, but the case coming up on a peremptory instruction to the jury, the supreme court only decided the matters presented for decision by the action of the trial court.

Women Were Brewers.

The brewing trade in England was formerly almost wholly in the hands of women. Until the close of the eighteenth century the preparation of ale for the household was reckoned among the duties of the mistress and her maids. The same custom prevailed in the brewing of ale for sale, and the "brewsters" or "alewives" long held a great part of the trade, both in town and country. Philologists will remember the termination that was feminine—the "spinster," the "sempster" and the "brewster."—London Chronicle.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson II. January 11
THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY.
Luke 10 : 1-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—It is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you.—Matt. 10 : 20.

The sending forth of the twelve is recorded in Matt. x, Mark vi and Luke ix. The sending of the seventy is told only in our lesson chapter. Both companies were sent by two and two, as lambs among wolves, and they were to preach the kingdom of God and heal the sick (verses 1, 3, 9; ix, 2; Mark vi, 7; Matt. x, 7, 8, 16). The reason given in each case for sending them is the same—harvest great, laborers few. The command to pray is also the same, "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He would send forth laborers into His harvest" (verse 2; Matt. ix, 36-38).

Matthew says that He saw the multitudes as sheep having no shepherd and He was moved with compassion on them. Believers are expected to have the mind of Christ, to manifest the life of Jesus, to be a willing and obedient people, to live to give the Gospel to every creature, but where is the compassion of Jesus for the shepherdless multitudes seen, and how many are willing to be sheep in the midst of wolves, hated by the world for His sake (John xv, 18, 19).

The twelve were not to go to gentiles or Samaritans, but only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel; the seventy were to go before His face into every city and place whither He himself would come, but since His resurrection the command is to go into all the world (Matt. x, 5, 6; Luke x, 1; Mark xvi, 15). After they were told to pray the Lord to send forth laborers they were told to go themselves (verse 3), and we cannot honestly ask the Lord to send others unless we are ready to say, "Here am I; send me" (Isa. vi, 8).

Isaiah saw the Lord upon a throne and heard the voice of the Lord; he had the assurance of iniquity taken away and sin purged; he saw in vision the earth full of His glory, and when the triune God said "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" he was ready to reply, "Behold me; send me."

It was the vision of the glory of the Lord that constrained Isaiah. It was seeing and hearing the risen Christ when on his way to Damascus that changed Saul of Tarsus from a persecutor and murderer to a most devoted follower of Jesus of Nazareth and made him blind and deaf to all but Jesus for the rest of his life (Acts xxii, 6, 11). The Lord Jesus said to him, "I send thee to open their eyes, to turn from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance" (Acts xxvi, 17, 18).

One of the great words in our lesson is, "Behold, I send you forth" (verse 3). He chose the twelve that they might be with Him and that He might send them forth (Mark iii, 14). To Gideon He said: "Go in this thy might. * * * Have not I sent thee?" (Judg. vi, 14). Over thirty times in the gospel by John He speaks of Himself as sent by the Father, and after the resurrection He said to the Apostles, "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you" (John xx, 21).

When we go in His name, with His message, sent by Him, we may always go with quietness and confidence. When on His business we need have no anxiety about the where-withal, for He will surely see to it.

He said to the twelve: "When I sent you without purse and scrip and shoes, lacked ye anything? And they said nothing" (Luke xxii, 35). We are to go preaching peace by Jesus Christ, the peace that He made by the blood of His cross (Col. i, 20). We are to rejoice in His presence with us, and that He is in us, and considers all treatment of us, good or bad, as done to Himself and to the Father who sent Him (verse 16). As the responsibility of those who heard the twelve and the seventy was greater than the responsibility of the people of Sodom and Tyre and Sidon, so their judgment would be heavier. What about those who today hear and do not heed? Consider II Thess. i, 7-9.

The seventy went forth as commanded and returned with a good report, saying that even demons were subject to His name. His remark concerning Satan falling from heaven probably points on to Rev. xii, 9, 10.

How wonderful His words, power over all the power of the enemy, and nothing shall by any means hurt you (verse 19). What do we know of it in our experience? He does not say that we shall not suffer; He says plainly that we shall (John xvi, 33). It may be in some form or other, the fiery furnace or the lions' den, but no hurt was found upon either of those four because of their faith in God (Dan iii, 25; vi, 23).

Note well, the greatest cause of rejoicing, names written in heaven, and compare with verse 20. Phil. iv, 3, and consider the awful fate of all whose names are not in the book of life according to Rev. xx, 15. If only we truly receive the Lord Jesus, putting all our trust as sinners in His precious blood shed for us, we may rest in the assurance that according to His word we have eternal life, have become children of God, and have the forgiveness of sins and can never perish (John i, 12; iii, 16; v, 24; vi, 37, 47).

MEXICAN PEPPER RECIPES.

THE Mexican housewife knows how to cook green peppers. Though Mexican food is generally highly seasoned, some of their recipes are well worth trying. The Mexicans have local names for these foods, but here English ones are given.

Savory Eggs.—Fry half a cupful of minced onion and green pepper in a little olive oil. When the onion is tender, but not brown, add four beaten eggs to which have been added three tablespoonfuls of cold water and half a cupful of tomato pulp.

Served With Sauce.

Peppers With Cheese.—Put six green peppers in the oven for a few minutes, then wipe off the outer skins with a cloth. Cut off the tops carefully, removing the seeds and veins; make a stuffing of cheese flavored with chopped onion, parsley and a few drops of lemon juice. Fill the peppers with this stuffing. Beat four eggs, whites and yolks separately; put together and thicken with a teaspoonful of flour. Dip the peppers in this batter and fry in hot olive oil until brown. Serve with tomato sauce.

Peppers With Macaroni.—Boil macaroni in salted water until tender, blanch in cold water and drain. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of green pepper, chopped, and a minced onion. Cover and let cook for five minutes and then pour in gradually a small cupful of stock and a cupful of stewed and strained tomatoes. Season with salt and paprika. Reheat in this sauce and serve at once.

Stuffed With Eggs.

Stuffed Peppers.—Carefully wipe off the skins of the peppers with a soft cloth. Grate dry cheese and stuff them with this. Press the two sides together and fasten with wooden skewers. Take enough eggs to cover the peppers well. Beat the yolks and whites separately and then mix them. Put enough lard or oil in the frying pan to cover the peppers. Dip each into the egg, covering well, and then drop into the hot fat, pouring over them more of the egg while the frying peppers are turned. Serve with chili sauce.

GREATER CHURCH ACTIVITY.

As the result of a well organized movement throughout the United States there has been a rapidly growing sentiment during the last year or so for greater church activity. The movement is different from others of a similar nature that have been launched from time to time in the past, in that it was organized by laymen who realized the crying need of reaching non-church members, not so much for the sake of the church itself as for the benefit of humanity. It has been a success because it has been conducted along business lines laid down by business men and embraces all denominations.

It must be admitted even by those who are not affiliated with any denomination and take no part in religious work that a splendid influence comes from church attendance. The atmosphere surrounding a religious service—the impressive music, the inspiring sermons and the meeting of lofty minded people—appeals to one's inner self and he feels that the hour has been more than merely instructive. Church attendance brings an influence for good that has a peculiar personal effect.

There are two principal reasons why the present movement for increased church activity is so popular. In the first place there is a widespread demand in every walk of life, and especially in the business world, for men of high moral character—men who are more than honest, who are clean, moral, manly men and exert an influence for good in the communities in which they move. The percentage of men of this character who are engaged in business and professional pursuits is greater than ever before and is strong evidence that the world is growing better.

The second reason is that the ministers, the active leaders of the church, have found that the congregations are interested in the great questions of the day and are desirous of advice and instruction that will help them in their daily life. The fundamental principles of right and wrong, christianity and paganism, charity and greed, honor and dishonor, faith and distrust, remain unchanged from what they were centuries ago, and the minister who does his work best will apply those same tenets in solving the problems with which his parishioners are confronted. This the average minister is striving to do, but those who neglect to do so are failing to grasp the opportunity afforded by their position.

A church occupies a place in a community that cannot be filled by any other organization. It is an organization for humanity, one that is open to receive everybody, regardless of class or wealth, who is solicitous of living a better and cleaner life. The church, in the broadest sense, is a big brotherhood where all members meet on a common ground, seeking the one goal and laboring for a common cause. The work that the church can do is unlimited but it will be most effective only by the manifestation of greater interest, the unswerving support and the enthusiastic co-operation of its constituents.

STATE CHAIRMAN WOULD INTEREST THE YOUNG MEN

Discusses Reorganization of Republican Party in Letter to County Chairmen.

That Republican county chairmen should take advantage of a favorable trend in various parts of the state toward the return to the Republican party of many who had left it, was advised in a communication sent to all the county chairmen in the state by State Chairman Fred A. Sims. A campaign for interesting the young men of the party in active work was also advised by the state chairman. The communication follows:

"I have much hesitancy in making suggestions to you who are not only on the ground and know the situation in your own county, but who are so familiar with the demands and needs of the party therein. But my interest in the future welfare and success of the Republican party leads me to suggest to you an idea of two which occurred to the writer to be desirable in the accomplishment of that purpose.

"In the campaign of 1912, with all its numerous difficulties, we found a very large loss in the absence of the young men from our ranks. May I add also that this seems to have grown more or less for a number of years? Would it not be possible for you, by calling in a conference a number of the younger men of your county to interest the young men in this campaign by getting them to take an active part in the coming primaries and the reorganization of our party? Nothing, in the opinion of the writer, is of more vital and essential importance to our future as a party than getting this class of workers actively engaged in its interests.

"I would also respectfully suggest to you the desirability of doing whatever you can in the best method which occurs to you, and your advisers, in encouraging and assisting the return of as many to the ranks of the Republican party, of the voters of your county as you can. Reports from all sections of the state from which I have heard indicate a very favorable trend of opinion in this direction and whatever you can do to aid and assist it in such manner as appeals to you as being effective will be of more consequence at this time than at any other period in the coming campaign. I would suggest also, in both of these matters, that you call to your assistance and counsel such persons as you deem best.

"Again, if you can so arrange it, it would be most beneficial, if you could visit, between now and the time of the primaries such sections of your county as you can, calling together in meetings at the various places you go, the Republicans and those who desire to affiliate with them in their respective communities. I know and appreciate that this may be a burden to you but I appeal to you by the great and deep interest you have manifested in the affairs of the Republican party, and by the sacrifices which you have made in going through a period unequalled before in the political history of our country to give, at this time, your best efforts to this reorganization, for upon this must rest our hopes for the future welfare of that party of which we think so much."

Miss Katherine McLaughlin is teacher of this grade.

EQUALIZATION IS BASIS OF JUST ASSESSMENT

Eben H. Wolcott Addresses County Assessors at Annual Conference at Indianapolis.

Other duties prevented Governor Ralston from making the welcome address at the thirteenth annual conference of the state board of tax commissioners and county assessors which opened at Indianapolis Thursday. The county assessors heard Eben H. Wolcott, a Republican member of the state tax board, in an address on the necessity for equalization of the tax valuations in Indiana. "There can be no satisfactory or just assessment without equalization," Mr. Wolcott said. "The basis of values must be as the law prescribes—the true cash values. Any other standard leads us into the labyrinth of individual error, lack of knowledge, personal or local influence and comparative assessment, which is most disastrous."

"The state tax board is lending every effort toward equalization. People do not object to paying taxes, for they realize that without taxation the national, state and county governments could not exist. They do object, however, to unjust and unequal taxation, and that is just what we are endeavoring to eliminate."

Mr. Wolcott spoke on the great difference in assessed values of machinery in the various counties. He admitted that the wear on machinery caused a difference of value, but he said he could see no reason why there should not be similar values on sheep, hogs and cattle, since the prices are practically the same in all parts of the state. He quoted from several tables arranged by the state board, showing that there is a great difference in the average taxation of various articles, even in adjoining counties. He closed with an admonition to the assessors to be conscientious and careful, saying that this would do away with much of the difficulty.

TELLS HOW MUCH TO FEED BABY

Machine Solves a Problem of Mothers the World Over.

REDUCED TO EXACT SCIENCE

Cornell Professor Before Physicians' Convention Demonstrates Wonderful Device—Physiologists Are Impressed by Report on Brain Discovery Made by Dr. John W. Crile of Cleveland.

Science, that indomitable force against which barriers heretofore impregnable are crumbling steadily and laying bare stores of vital knowledge, has at last mastered the problem of every mother—namely, the proper feeding of her baby. So it was announced by Dr. J. R. Murlin of Cornell university to the medical savants who attended the closing session of the three day convention of the Federation of American Societies For Experimental Biology at the University of Pennsylvania.

By a delicate system of chemical calculations, Dr. Murlin gave out, which he obtained after perfecting an incubator-like apparatus for the study of energy evolved by an infant's body, he has been able to determine scientifically the food requirements of the newly born infant, even of the premature baby.

To Study Baby's Needs.

The infant that is not responding to the customary diets can be put into the device, and an exact knowledge of just what nutritious substances he needs can be procured. Baby can play about in the boxlike machine just as the whim takes him. He can roll about, kick, cry, laugh, goosoo, sleep—anything that might be expected of him—but all the while that mystic process is going on.

Dr. Murlin explained that the constituents of the air inhaled and exhaled by the infant inside were measured chemically—how, only a man with the cipher of ten syllable words at his finger ends could understand. From these measurements it is a simple matter for the physician to prescribe for his little patient a diet that is bound to start him on his way to robustness.

Much the same kind of research work was reported by Dr. A. S. Loevenhart of the University of Wisconsin. He had a similar apparatus, respiration chamber, as it were, to work with as the one made by Dr. Murlin, though the former confined all his observations to small animals.

Dr. Crile's Brain Discovery.

The physiologists of the federation converged at a discovery made by Dr. John W. Crile of Cleveland, who as one of the greatest surgeons in the country won international fame as the originator of local anesthesia. Dr. Crile announced that after examining more than 700 brains he had been able to group certain organisms that were interdependent, co-ordinated with one another.

He called this group the "kinetic system" and named the brain, adrenal, thyroid gland, liver and pancreas syndrome as the organisms which composed it. He found by his experiments that whatever hurt one of these affected the others. Some sort of sympathetic relationship, he said, existed between them.

BAR "GOD," SAYS DR. ELIOT.

Would Substitute "Our Father" in New Faith Based on Fact.

Nothing so radical from a high source has appeared in years as the supplementary article on "The Future of Religion," which Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, has prepared and which has been published by the American Unitarian association.

Dr. Eliot would take away the term "God" and use in its place "Our Father." His twentieth century Christianity does not believe in the garden of Eden. Dr. Eliot says God did not make man out of the dust of the ground, nor did he give into the hands of Moses the Ten Commandments; neither did the sun stand still for Joshua, nor did Jonah abide in the whale.

There will be no miracles in this twentieth century religion. "Men of science," says Dr. Eliot, "have no faith in magic or miracles."

The brotherhood of man will be the outcome of the new religion, declares the Harvard scholar.

WORLD'S GOLD AND SILVER.

Notable Decrease in Product of This Country, the Transvaal and Mexico.

George E. Roberts, director of the mint, estimates the world's production of gold last year at $455,000,000, approximately $11,000,000 less than in 1912. He places the silver production at 212,000,000 fine ounces, about 12,000,000 less than in 1912.

In the United States the production of gold fell off $5,000,000, chiefly in Alaska and Nevada. The Transvaal fell $5,000,000 behind its record of 1912. But for the miners' strike in June the Transvaal would have shown a moderate increase. Australasia lost $1,000,000, which is a continuation of a decline that has been going on for several years. Mexico's production fell off about $5,000,000, due to the war. Canada gained $2,700,000 in the production of gold and British India $1,000,000.

JAUNTY COSTUME.

Serviceable Suit For
All Round Wear.

OF BLUE NAVY BLUE SERGE.

A blue serge suit fashioned in a jaunty manner is the most serviceable garment a young girl can include in her wardrobe for all round wear.

Illustrated is one of the prettiest models designed for the demiseason. The coat is cut on Norfolk lines, and the belt is dropped below the hips.

New Things in the Shops.

A new broom sweeps clean, but there is a newer one with a long handle and the brush part of fiber, which sweeps clean and does away with backache, tired arms and blistered hands as well as no dust.

There is a small fire extinguishing appliance that inspires confidence in a householder's breast and gives her the assurance that a small blaze could be quickly and effectively overcome. It is a small nickel plated affair that holds a quart of fire extinguishing liquid and works on the same principle as a youngster's popgun, spraying a blaze quite a distance away.

This device costs $7, but is worth it in the feeling of security it gives dwellers in suburban places and apartments.

From fire to water is but a step, and for those who dislike overshoes in wet weather there comes a waterproofing fluid which when poured on, spread evenly and allowed to dry on a pair of shoes renders them waterproof. Applied two or three times during a season, this preparation makes the owner of the shoes wonderfully indifferent to dampness and overshoes. The price is 25 cents for a full sized can of the fluid.

Cure For Laziness.

Are you lazy? All right. Wear something red and become full of energy.

Are you feeling blue because of the inclement weather? Don't worry, but put on something red.

The American Association For the Study of Spondylatherapy (whatever that means) at their annual meeting recently gave out a new cure for laziness. The cure is to wear something red.

The idea is this: The society has come to the conclusion that certain colors work on a man's nerves to such an extent that they control his destiny. For instance, a person who sleeps in a room papered in white is calm and collected. Likewise the man who wears a green eyeshade. The green has a certain effect on the retina, which in turn communicates the color to the brain, the result being that the eyes are soothed, and consequently the whole body is at peace with the world.

Red, the society says, has a tendency to arouse any one wearing it.

Rearrange Furniture Often.

In some houses one enters the arrangement of the furniture never varies from year to year. In other houses the furniture is changed about every week or two. It may be easily judged which practice is the more agreeable and refreshing for all concerned. One woman is on record who actually stuck pins in the carpet on sweeping days to indicate for the maid the exact spots where feet of tables and chairs must be set again when the room was finished.

This was going to extremes, but the e are many people who are just as narrow and prejudiced in their ideas. It is a good thing to change furniture about. It gives the relief of variety and often increases our appreciation of the beauty of some particular piece. Furthermore, the rearrangement of furniture helps to develop the quality of resourcefulness and discourages narrow prejudice.

Very Latest in Negligees.

One of the latest fashions in negligees is the one that is made with a deep yoke of lace that extends in the old "Mother Hubbard" fashion to be low arm depth. To this the lower part of the negligee is draped so that the folds fall in long, graceful festoons. The sleeves are in one with the yoke, which is lined with mousseline de sole.

GENERAL BUCKNER IS DEAD AT GLEN LILY

Passing of One of South's
Most Interesting Figures.

Mumfordsville, Ky., Jan. 9.—General Simon Bolivar Buckner, former governor of Kentucky, is dead at his home here in his ninetieth year. General Buckner was born in Hart county, Kentucky. In the early 40's he got a cadetship at West Point, graduating in 1844. Three years after that he was a professor at the academy. He served with distinction in the Mexican war, where he was wounded, and then returned to West Point for another professorship.

At the outbreak of the civil war he was made commander of the state guard of Kentucky and in 1861 he issued an address to the people calling upon them to take up arms against the Union. He commanded a Confederate brigade at the battle of Fort Donelson, surrendering the fort to General Grant. He was in prison at Fort Warren, Boston, until exchanged in August, 1862. He subsequently commanded a division in General Bragg's army in Tennessee.

General Buckner was one of the candidates of the Democratic party for vice president in 1896, running on the ticket with Senator John M. Palmer of Illinois, candidate for president. Since the campaign of that year the general had been living at Glen Lily, his estate in Hart county.

FINDING TO BE DEFERRED

It Will Be a Month Before Arbitration Decision Is Announced.

Indianapolis, Jan. 9.—It will be at least a month before the public service commission will be ready to announce its decision in the Indianapolis streetcar controversy, according to an estimate made by Chairman Duncan of the time which will be required to review the evidence and prepare a finding.

The final arguments of attorneys have been heard, but it is doubtful whether the commission, because of the work which has accumulated since the hearing began, Dec. 4, will give immediate consideration to the streetcar matter. Other business of importance must be disposed of first.

Attorneys for both the company and the employees agreed that the commission should use all of the time it considers necessary in arriving at a decision. Employees will not suffer by a delay in reaching a decision, because the effect of the finding will date back to Nov. 7, when the agreement to arbitrate was reached. After he had concluded his argument, the street railway company's attorney, as a lawyer rather than a representative of the streetcar company, urged that the commission, in making its finding, give reasons, rules and premises on which it bases its decision, "that a precedent may be established which will be the greatest step toward some form of legalized industrial arbitration that has been taken in the history of the world."

He said that up to this time no board of arbitration has outlined the principles which governed the reaching of its decisions, and he predicted that there will be a greater willingness to arbitrate industrial differences when reasonable assurances are given of the principles which are to be observed in the conduct of hearings.

FOUL PLAY NOW SUSPECTED

Man Found Dying in Alley Probable Victim of Thugs.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 9.—John Harvey, age forty-two; Earnest Loman, age twenty-six, and Ernest Linder, age twenty-five, were arrested in connection with the robbery and death of James W. Simpson, of Redkey, who was found dying in an alley here December 21. The police say that Loman confessed the three men robbed Simpson. He says that the robbery was committed in a saloon when it was found that Simpson had $200 in money, according to the police.

Simpson was first believed to have died of paralysis. Prosecutor Hennegge will order the body of Simpson exhumed for post mortem examination. The police are inclined to believe "knockout drops" were given to Simpson and if analysis proves that a drug was used charges of murder will be placed against the three men.

MRS. CULLOP IS PRESIDENT

Women's Democratic League Honors Popular Indiana Woman.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Women's National Democratic league closed its annual convention with the election by acclamation of Mrs. William A. Cullop, wife of Representative Cullop of Indiana, to the presidency.

No resolution was adopted urging legislation upon the party. Throughout the session stress had been laid upon the avowed object of the league, to aid in the congressional campaign of the coming November, and the league leaders held that under their constitution only issues outlined in the party's platform could be considered. Rumors had it that one element wanted to take up the suffrage question by resolution, but there was no attempt to do so.

The reports of officers showed the league to have gained in membership and financial stability.

Has It That Lind Was Charged With a Reprimand For O'Shaughnessy.

Vera Cruz, Jan. 9.—The conference between John Lind and Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, continued for several hours. It is reported that although Mr. O'Shaughnessy only came here to talk over with Mr. Lind the result of the latter's visit to President Wilson, there is good reason to believe that there is something further in the visit of the charge d'affaires. It is believed that Mr. Lind has been instructed to upbraid Mr. O'Shaughnessy for his friendly attitude toward the Huerta government. Mr. O'Shaughnessy dined last night with Mr. Lind aboard the battleship Michigan.

Drawn to Death in Meal Bin.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 9.—Scorning to follow the custom of workmen who rope themselves at the waist when they get into the meal bins, at the American Maize Products plant, at Roby, Felix Soslosky paid the penalty with his life. He was drawn into the meal and suffocated in it.

Car Was Running on Wrong Track.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 9.—Jacob Sloderbeck, age sixty-five, is dead of concussion of the brain, suffered when he was run down by a street car. Because of work being done to one of the tracks, the car was running in the left side of the street. When Sloderbeck was warned of the approach of the car he stepped directly in front of it, evidently believing that he was stepping to a vacant track.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 9.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, and Charles Tanner, auditor of the organization, told to the grand jury here their versions of the deportation episode of Dec. 26. Less than two hours were consumed in the grand jury room, the men then returning to the same hotel in Hancock whence they were taken a fortnight ago.

No announcement as to the nature of their testimony was forthcoming from any authoritative source, and they themselves declined to grant interviews.

Except for the fact that a big crowd of union men greeted their leader on his arrival and stood about the hotel in groups while he was there, no incident occurred to recall the intense bitterness that preceded the deportation.

Shackleton Stories.

Some amusing stories of his lecturing experiences are told by Sir Ernest Shackleton, the Antarctic explorer.

One day when in Scotland golfing, after his first expedition, he received a letter from Harrow school asking him to give a lecture. He did not want to go, so he wrote fixing a prohibitive price as he thought—a fee of £30, exclusive of expenses. To his amazement the offer was accepted, and he gave the lecture. On the strength of that he wrote to the authorities at Eton and offered his services at an equal rate. The reply came back, "Dear Sir—This is five times as much as we pay to really first class lecturers."

His audience at Leith was once so small that he went to the cabman he had left outside and said, "I will pay for some one to hold the horse, and you can come in and hear the lecture." "Oh, no, thank you," said the cabman; "I am all right where I am." Afterward, with his wife, he was counting his losses and said, "Twenty-five people at a head that makes the total receipts £1 5s." "But," said his wife, "you must deduct 2s from that. I sent the cook and one of the maids."

"Oh, yes," she said, with a sigh, "but they don't match."

CHAPTER XIII. "8838."

FOR a few days after this conversation the master of transportation was in doubt as to what course he should pursue. In the end he did nothing, and the letter from St. Louis was permanently filed away. There were several reasons for this action. For one thing, he was a salaried man and could not afford to lose his job. What influenced him most, however, was his genuine liking for Anthony.

The first thing Kirk did when pay day came was to inclose the greater part of his salary in an envelope and send it to John Weeks, with a note explaining that he had withheld only enough for his own actual needs, and promising to continue reducing his indebtedness by a like amount monthly. He was surprised beyond measure to have the remittance promptly returned. The brief letter that accompanied it brought him a flush of discomfort. What the deuce had made Mrs. Cortlandt do that? For a time he was undecided whether to be offended at her conduct or gratified, and he had not settled the matter to his satisfaction when he called upon her that evening.

"Weeks wrote me you had squared my account with him," he said awkwardly. "I'm tremendously obliged, of course, and—I'll give this to you instead of him." He offered her the envelope with his pay inclosed.

"Don't be silly, Kirk," she said in a matter of fact tone. "I didn't wish Weeks to have any opportunity to talk. You need this money and I don't."

"Perhaps I should have offered it to Mr. Cortlandt."

"Stephen knows nothing about the Weeks affair. If you choose to regard my little favor as a debt, however, please let it run on until you are better able to pay."

But Anthony remained inflexible, and at last she accepted his proffer with some impatience.

"You are the most foolish person I ever knew," she remarked. "You have the most disappointing way of receiving favors. I had a decent position for you, but you would go to collecting fares. I hope you have had enough of it by now and are ready to take something worth while."

"Not until it comes naturally. No hop, skip and jump for mine."

Edith sighed. "It is terribly dull for me here at present," she said. "Mr. Cortlandt is very busy; I have no one to talk to, no one to amuse me. Why, I've scarcely seen you since you went to work. Will you come to the dance tomorrow night?"

He shook his head.

"The music is good. You will meet some nice people. If you remember, one of your qualifications for a position was that you are a good waltzer."

"I can't mingle with the 'quality'."

"Be sensible. This is an invitation."

"I've learned something about canal conditions. What would people say if Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt were seen dancing with the new collector of No. 2? Besides, to tell the sordid truth, I haven't any clothes."

Edith silently extended the envelope in her hand, but he laughed.

"Perhaps I'll come to the next dance. I'll be rich then. See!" He showed her a long slip of paper consisting of five coupons, each numbered "8838."

"Lottery tickets?"

He nodded. "Allan had a very particular dream about the number 8, so I invested $5 'silver' on his hunch. It's the number of my automobile license." Kirk sighed at the memory of his new French car. "You don't object to such gambling?"

"Hardly," laughed Edith, "when I have a ticket for the same drawing. Every one does it, you know."

"If I win the capital prize I'll come to the next party and claim all the dances you will allow me. The drawing comes off next Sunday, and it happens that I've been shifted to No. 6 for a few trips, so I'll have a chance to see the fun."

Inasmuch as No. 6 did not leave until 1 o'clock on Sunday, he had ample time in which to witness the lottery drawing, a thing he had been curious to see since he had first heard of it. This form of gambling was well recognized, it seemed; not only the natives, but all classes of canal zone workers, engaged in it freely. The drawings were conducted under rigid government supervision.

Allan, vastly excited, was, of course, waiting to accompany him.

"Oh, boss," exclaimed the negro, "I feel that we shall h'experience good fortune today!"

"Did you buy a ticket?"

"No, sar; I h'invested all my monies traveling on those railroad trains."

"Now see how foolish you are. If you'd stayed at home you might have bought the winning number today."

"I prefer to h'accompany you. But I have been thinking to make you a proposition, of partnership. Master h'Anthony. I will stay home and dream numbers, which you can purchase with your salary. In that manner we shall certainly burst this lottery. I do not desire the profits, however, for being partners with you. I would like you to have plenty of monies, that is all. I love you, sar."

"Don't! You embarrass me."

The drawing, which was for a capital prize of $15,000 ("silver"), had drawn a larger crowd than usual, and when the two reached Cathedral square they found the lottery building and plaza thronged to overflowing with the usual polyglot elements that make up these Latin-American gatherings.

By dint of considerable effort Kirk succeeded in working his way through the wide double doors, and, being much above the average height, he was able to get a good view of the proceedings. Upon a platform a group of ceremonious officials were gathered about a revolving wire cage, so arranged that it could be whirled rapidly upon its axis. Into it were put ten ivory spheres, resembling billiard balls in size and appearance. When this had been done the cage was closed, and a very badly frightened twelve-year-old girl was selected at random from the audience, then lifted to the stage, where it required the commands and entreaties of her excited parents to prevent her from dissolving in tears.

At a word from the master of ceremonies the cage was spun until the ivory balls inside leaped and capered like captive squirrels. Then at another signal it was stopped. The door was opened, and the little girl reached in a trembling hand and selected a sphere. It proved to be hollow, with two halves screwed together, and in full sight of the assembly it was opened, displaying a bit of paper inside.

"Ocho!" cried the announcer, and a card bearing the numeral "8" was raised. The paper was replaced inside the ivory ball, the ball itself was dropped into the wire cage, the door was closed and once more the cage was spun.

Kirk was much interested in the scene, not from any faintest hope that he would draw a prize, but purely from the novel atmosphere and color of the thing. While his eyes were busied and just as the child prepared to draw another ball he felt a clutch upon his arm and, glancing down, beheld the glowing black eyes of Señor Ramon Alfarez fixed upon him. He carried a dapper little cane, with which he tapped his former prisoner to attract his attention.

At sight of him Kirk drew down his brows and said gruffly:

"Don't poke me with that umbrella."

He turned away, but again Alfarez touched him.

"I will spik' wit' you, hombre," he said.

"If you keep jabbing me with that crutch I'll break it, and then you can't walk home."

Ramon jerked his head toward the square outside in an imperious fashion, and Kirk, curious to learn the cause of unusual excitement, followed him without demur. When they had reached the street the Spaniard turned with flashing eyes and a mirthless smile.

"Well!" he said dramatically.

"Pretty well. How goes it with you?"

"So! You've succeeded in your cowardly attempt?"

"My what?"

"I lose my poseetion as comandante of police."

"You don't say so!" Kirk's face broke into a smile of real pleasure.

"Ha! Makes it you to laugh, then?" exclaimed the Panamanian excitedly.

"Per'aps you shall answer to those detestable actions, senor."

"Perhaps! I see you blame me for the loss of your job. Well, maybe you got your hands on."

"Bot—I 'ave another poseetion!" Ramon exulted. "I 'ave been promote! I am appoin't yesterday by his excellency the presidente to be his secretary."

"I suppose it's a good job, but you ought to be selling poison in a drug store."

Narrowing his eyes, Alfarez said meaningly in a voice that none might overhear, "Panama is sometimes very on'cealthy city for fat Americans." He ran a hostile glance up and down Anthony's burly frame. "It is the climate per'aps—of too great 'eat. The senor is reech man's son, eh? Those don't geeve the appearance."

With supreme insolence he touched one of the buttons upon Kirk's linen uniform with his cane, whereat the American snatched the stick out of his hand, broke it and tossed it into the street. His blood was up, and in another breath he would have struck the

"You have won the capital prize."

Spaniard, regardless of consequences, but just at that moment Allan dashed out of the crowd crying breathlessly:

"Oh, boss! Oh, boss! Glory to God, it is true! Oh-b-b, glory!" Seizing Kirk's hands, he kissed them before the other could prevent, then ran on frantically: "Come quick! Come! Come! Come!"

"Look out!" snapped Kirk angrily. "What's happened?"

"The dream! The dream is come! Oh, God, sar! You—you have won the capital prize, sar! You—do not say you have lost the ticket or I shall die and kill myself!"

"Here it is!" In his hand Anthony waved a slip of paper, out of which leaped four big, red numbers—"8838."

"Diabolo!" came from behind him, and he turned to behold Alfarez, livid of face and with shaking hand, fling a handful of similar coupons after the broken cane. Without another word or a glance behind him the Panamanian made off across the plaza, barely in time to escape the crowd that surged around the two he had quitted.

Bombarded by a fusillade of questions in a dozen tongues, jostled by a clamorous, curious throng, the lucky owner of 8838 fought his way back into the lottery building, and as he went the news spread like flaming oil.

There it was, plainly displayed, "8838!" There could be no possible mistake, and it meant 15,000 silver pesos, a princely fortune indeed for the collector of No. 2.

Promptly at five minutes to 1 o'clock that afternoon Allan Allan, late of Jamaica, strode through the Panama railroad station and flaunted a first class round trip ticket to Colon before the eyes of his enemy, the gateman.

He was smoking a huge Jamaican cigar, and his pockets bulged with others. When he came to board the train he called loudly for a porter to bring him the step and once inside selected a shady seat with the languid air of a bored globe trotter.

Only when Kirk appeared upon his rounds did he forego his haughty complacency. Then his wide lips, which nature had shaped to a perpetual grin, curved back as they were intended, his smile lit up the car, and he burst into loud laughter.

Kirk found that the report of his good fortune had spread far and wide; he was hailed a score of times for congratulations; operators at the various stations yelled at him and waved their hands; Runnels wired "Hurrah!" at Gatun. A certain respect was in these greetings, too, for he had suddenly become a character.

As yet, however, he had not fully considered what this windfall meant to him. His first thought had been that he could now discharge his debts, go back to New York and clear himself before the law. Yet the more he thought of it the less eager he became to return. Seven thousand five hundred dollars in gold to Kirk Anthony of Panama, collector, was a substantial fortune. To Kirk Anthony of Albany, distributor, it was nothing. Suppose he went home and squared his account with the police, what would he do then? Nothing, as usual. Here, he was proving that the Anthony breed was self supporting at least. And there was another reason, the weightiest of all. Long before he had reached the end of his run he realized that not 100 times the amount of this capital prize would tempt him to leave Panama before he had seen Chiquita.

Chiquita was beginning to seem like a dream. At times during the past week he had begun to wonder if she were not really a product of his own imagination. His fancy had played upon her so extravagantly that he feared he would not know her if ever they came face to face.

This was most unsatisfactory, and he reproached himself bitterly for the involuntary faithfulness that could allow her image to grow dim. He was almost without hope of seeing her again. And then, with the inconsequence of dreams and sprites, she appeared to him.

It was but a glimpse he had and a tantalizing flash of recognition from her eyes. It happened in the dusk during the confusion that accompanied the arrival of No. 7 at Panama. It lasted only a moment, and he lost sight of her again in the crowd.

But there was no doubt that she had recognized him, and nothing now could prevent him from continuing his search. The trouble was that his present occupation allowed him no opportunity. He was tied to the railroad except at night.

It was perhaps two weeks later that a serious shakeup occurred in the office force, of which no one seemed to know the cause. There was a mad scramble for advancement all along the line, in which Kirk took no part. But unexpectedly Runnels summoned him to his office.

"How would you like an inside position?" said the master of transportation, eyeing him keenly.

"So soon?"

"I said I'd advance you if you made good." He paused an instant, then said deliberately, "When you get the hang of things here you'll have a chance to be my assistant."

Kirk opened his eyes in amazement. "Gee! That's great! But do you think I can get away with it?"

"Not at once. It will take time, of course, and you'll have to work like the devil. Look here, Anthony, I'm partly selfish in this, for I believe you're the sort I'm going to want with in the next year. The superintendent has had an offer from a big system in the states, and he's going to quit when his vacation comes. He likes me and he says I'll probably step into his shoes. Do you understand what that means? I'll need fellows I can count on—fellows who won't double cross me to make a dollar for themselves, or knife me when my back is turned. I've got to have an efficient, noiseless organization. Otherwise we'll all go under, for we'll be into politics up to our necks. I think you're my sort, so if you'll stick to me I'll help you and for every step I take I'll drag you up one."

"It's a go!" The two young men clasped hands heartily. Runnels had struck the right note. Beside his former desire to prove himself a man, Kirk now felt a strong sense of loyalty to the one who had recognized his worth.

When he told his good news to Mrs. Cortlandt, her surprise was so cleverly simulated that he never dreamed that she had been at great pains to bring this thing about. Not that Runnels was indisposed to act upon his own initiative, but the circumstances that had made his action possible had been due to her. It was hard to help a man against his will, but she profited by experience and took the line of least resistance.

The young man himself did not inquire too closely into the occasion of his advancement, and Edith Cortlandt was but little in his mind. He was consumed with the thought of Chiquita. He hoped that his new work would allow him more control of his time and perhaps put him in the way of learning her name. He could move in better society now.

For Bright Eyes and Clear Nose

Remarkable Catarrh Cure
That Gets Right into the Affected Parts and Stops Gatherings.

S. S. S. is a Wonder for the Eyes, Nose and Throat.

It is definitely known that catarrh can be cured by the simple process of inoculating the blood with antitoxin remedies that stop inflammatory conditions throughout the mucous linings of all the organs of the body. This is done with the famous Swift's Sure Specific, or as it is widely known, S. S. S. It is taken into the blood just as naturally as the most nourishing food. It spreads its influence over every organ in the body, through all the veins and arteries, and enables all mucous surfaces to exchange inflammatory acids and other irritating substances for arterial elements that effectively cleanse the system and thus put an end to all catarrhal pollution. S. S. S. cleanses out the stomach of mucous accumulations, enables only pure, blood-making materials to enter the intestines, combines with these food elements to enter the circulation, and in less than an hour is at work throughout the body in the process of purification.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache and steadily improved nasal condition.

For special advice on any blood disease write to the Swift Specific Co., 223 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Do not delay to get a bottle of S. S. S. from your druggist.

Always insist that you want S. S. S., and nothing else. Beware of all attempts to sell you a substitute.

Grant County Farm Hand Declares He Was Inadequately Paid.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 7.—Eli Raypholtz, who worked as a farm laborer for twenty-two years for James W. Raypholtz, in an itemized account, also charges for the use of three horses and claims interest on the wages. During the twenty-two years the farm hand says he received only $500 in money and $158.40 worth of tobacco, and these items he places in the account as credits.

Impure Food Causes Death.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 7.—Corn poisoning has caused the death of at least forty horses and mules within the last three or four weeks. The disease is a fungus poisoning contracted by eating moldy corn and fodder. Unless treatment is begun as soon as the disease is detected there is little likelihood of saving an animal's life.

ONE-HALF OF FORCE OF FIELD EXAMINERS TO LOSE PLACES

Reorganization of State Board of Accounts Will be Made in a Short Time.

A reorganization of the state board of accounts, which is expected to wipe approximately one-half the present force of field examiners from the pay roll of the state, is in process of completion though officials of the state board, Governor Ralston, or others interested, will not discuss the situation.

For some time it has been known that the releasing of from thirty-five to forty field examiners was contemplated. Gilbert H. Hendren, chief of the state board, who has been ill at his home for many weeks, has announced that he perhaps would have the details of the plan of organization worked out by this week.

The Governor, W. H. O'Brien, auditor of state and legal head of the state board, have been arranging the reorganization for some time. The reasons given for the coming release of the field examiners is that approximately all of the volume of the work which fell to the board in the years following its creation has been finished, and that practically all work now ahead of the board is current work in the offices of the state, counties and municipalities and townships.

The investigations by the state board into former administrations in the various divisions of government have been brought up to date in nearly all instances, it is said, and for this reason officials believe the state board now can operate with approximately one-half its former field force. A rumor that the change was being made to make places for other appointees was declared untrue by officials.

The force of the state board in the field has been kept at approximately one hundred men. Some time ago, just after Mr. Hendren went into office, he held an examination for applicants for field examiners' jobs and new faces appeared in the list shortly thereafter.

Mr. Hendren, it is said, will not change any of the members of the present executive force of the state board. He would give no details of the proposed organization other than to say he had not yet completed all the plans. It is believed the cut in the force will be made within the next few days.

A daughter was born today to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bunton, East Fifth street.

Marriage and Longevity.

The article in the last issue of The Human Factor entitled "America's 17,000,000 Unmarried Adults" was widely copied and commented upon in the press of this and other countries.

This comment was of especial interest because much of it was based upon an apparent wrong assumption of fact. Although we simply called attention to the large number of unmarried adults in the United States and to the report of Professor Wilcox of Cornell that the death rate among single people was apparently much higher than among the married people, the editors quite generally assumed that marriage was declining and also being generally postponed by the young. Many writers asserting this as an actual fact, charged that this unfortunate condition in the field of matrimony was due to "the high cost of living."

The official figures do not, however, support any of these theories.

It may be true that fewer and later marriages are occurring in certain walks of life, but the census reports show that in the entire population the proportion of married men to the total men in the marital age group has actually increased. The figures are:

Married Males
1890 ..... 53.9 per cent.
1900 ..... 54.5 per cent.
1910 ..... 55.8 per cent.

The census also indicates that more people are marrying now in the younger age groups than formerly. The proportion of married men to the total in these groups was as follows:

Married Men 1890 1910
Age 15-19 ..... 0.5 1.1 per cent.
20-24 ..... 18.9 24.0 per cent.
25-34 ..... 61.5 62.8 per cent.
35-44 ..... 80.9 79.2 per cent.

These records are at least of value in showing the trend. They also disturb the common theory that "the high cost of living" is responsible for the alleged "decrease in marriage."

For instance, if the large number of unmarried people in our country are now remaining single because of "the high cost of living," what caused them to hold back in 1890 when the proportion of unmarried people was larger and the cost of supporting a family was so much less than it is now?

This entire subject is strongly charged with human interest and well merits careful consideration. But the announcement of especial concern to the insuring public, and which was to a great extent overlooked, is the fact indicated by the Wilcox analysis, that married people live longer than single.—Human Factor.

PROPRIETOR MUST KNOW THAT MEASURES ARE RIGHT

Supreme Court Hands Down Opinion That is of Interest to Every Indiana Dealer.

An opinion that is of interest to every dealer in Indiana who uses weights and measures was handed down Thursday by the Indiana supreme court in the case of the State of Indiana against Hugh McCaffrey, a dealer in Miami county. McCaffrey was acquitted in the lower court for selling a short measure of potatoes upon the ground that he did not know of the alleged short measure. The decision was reversed by the supreme court.

The court says "the proprietor of a store must know that no false weights or measures are being used in his business, and in failing to do so must suffer penalty." The court says that there being sufficient evidence from which the jury might have inferred that the defendant was owner of the store the question should have been left to the jury. The case as prosecuted and appealed as a test of the new law requiring the sale of potatoes by weight but the case coming up on a peremptory instruction to the jury, the supreme court only decided the matters presented for decision by the action of the trial court.

Funeral Notice.

The funeral of the late Fred Stoeckamp will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock from the residence of John Hageman, one mile south of Sauers church. The services will be in charge of Rev. E. H. Eggers, pastor of the German Lutheran church. Burial at the Sauers cemetery.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

From Taylor, English dramatist and art critic, was born at Sundersland, England, in 1817 and died at Wandsworth, England, July 12, 1880. He studied at Glasgow university and at Trinity college, Cambridge, England; was professor of English at University college, London; was called to the bar in 1846, in 1854 was appointed secretary of the board of health and was editor of Punch from 1874 to 1880. He wrote or adapted about 100 plays, among which was "Our American Cousin," the play which Abraham Lincoln was witnessing the performance of in Ford's theater, Washington, April 14, 1865, when he was shot. Abraham Lincoln was born in Hardin county, Ky., Feb. 12, 1809, and died at Washington April 15, 1865. This tribute first appeared in London Punch, which up to that time had by word and picture tried to cast ridicule on Lincoln.]

YOU lay a wreath on murdered Lincoln's bier,
You who with mocking pencil went to trace,
Broad for the self complacent British sneer,
His length of shambling limb, his furrowed face,

His gaunt, gnarled hands, his unkempt, bristling hair,
His garb uncouth, his bearing ill at ease,
His lack of all we prize as debonaire,
Of power or will to shine, of art to please;

You whose smart pen backed up the pencil's laugh,
Judging each step as though the way were plain,
Reckless, so it could point its paragraph
Of chief's perplexity or people's pain;

Beside this corpse that bears for winding sheet
The stars and stripes he lived to rear anew,
Between the mourners at his head and feet,
Say, scurrile jester, is there room for you?

Yes, he had lived to shame me from my sneer,
To lame my pencil and confute my pen,
To make me own this hind, or princes peer,
This rail splitter, a true-born king of men.

My shallow judgment I had learned to rue,
Noting how to occasion's height he rose;
How his quaint wit made home truth seem more true;
How, iron-like, his temper grew by blows.

How humble, yet how hopeful, he could be;
How in good fortune and in ill the same,
Nor bitter in success, nor boastful he,
Thirsty for gold, nor feverish for fame.

He went about his work—such work as few
Ever had laid on head and heart and hand—
As one who knows where there's a task to do
Man's honest will must heaven's good grace command.

Who trusts the strength will with the burden grow,
That God makes instruments to work his will,
If but that will we can arrive to know,
Nor tamper with the weights of good and ill.

So he went forth to battle on the side
That he felt clear was liberty's and right's,
As in his peasant boyhood he had plied
His warfare with rude Nature's thwarting might;

The uncared forest, the unbroken soil,
The iron bark that turns the lumberer's ax,
The rapid that o'erbears the boatman's toll,
The prairie hiding the mazed wanderer's tracks,

The ambushed Indian and the prowling bear—
Such were the deeds that helped his youth to train;
Rough culture, but such trees large fruit may bear
If but their stocks be of right girth and grain.

So he grew up, a destined work to do,
And lived to do it; four long suffering years
Ill fate, ill feeling, ill report, lived through,
And then he heard the hisses change to cheers.

The taunts to tribute, the abuse to praise,
And took both with the same unwavering mood,
Till, as he came on light from darkling days
And seemed to touch the goal from where he stood.

A felon hand between the goal and him
Reached from behind his back, a trigger prest,
And those perplexed and patient eyes were dim,
Those gaunt, long laboring limbs were laid to rest!

The words of mercy were upon his lips,
Forgiveness in his heart and on his pen,
When this vile murderer brought swift eclipse
To thoughts of peace on earth, good will to men.

The old world and the new, from sea to sea,
Utter one voice of sympathy and shame;
Sore heart, so stopped when it at last beat high;
Sad life cut short just as its triumph came!

A deed accurst! Strokes have been struck before
By the assassin's hand, whereof men doubt
If more of horror or disgrace they bore,
But thy foul crime, like Cain's, stands darkly out.

Vile hand that brandest murder in a strife,
Whate'er its grounds, stoutly and nobly striven,
And with the martyr's crown crownest a life
With much to praise, little to be forgiven.

—Tom Taylor.

THE SINGING.

LAST night I sang with careless heart,
Indifferent who should hear my song,
And mockingly I took the gold
Flung by the drifting throng.

TONIGHT you crossed the little square . . .
A glory filled the bitter street.
I sang for love and singing's sake—
And the gold lay at my feet.
